

Austin Builder Dies in Crash Of Small Plane

Tuesday Rites Set For B. P. Slaughter, 1930 Graduate

Barney P. Slaughter, BS '30, died Monday following a plane crash in north Austin.

The accident occurred early in the morning soon after Mr. Slaughter, 50, took off in his private plane on a trip to Dallas. The plane was demolished and he was thrown clear of the wreckage.

Authorities at Municipal Airport, where Mr. Slaughter took off, stated that a low ceiling may have been a major cause of the crash. The plane fell in a corner of the old University airport on the Dallas highway.

Mr. Slaughter, a former architecture student at the University, operated a construction company in Austin. He was a Mason and a Shriner. Survivors are his wife, a son, a brother, and two sisters.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the chapel of Hytlin-Manor Funeral Home. Burial will be at Austin Memorial Park.

Six SPE's Hurt When Car Skids

Six University students suffered minor cuts and bruises when the car in which they were riding skidded on the wet pavement into a curb Thursday night at Barton Springs Road and Lamar Boulevard.

"I feel lucky we got out of it alive," said Carroll B. Sumrall, who lost two teeth in the accident. Sumrall, past president of PEM club, said the car was badly damaged.

Spencer Garsee, president of Sigma Phi Epsilon, who was the driver of the car, spent the night in the University Health Center for observation. Others in the accident were Billy Jackson, Wes Podluda, Bailey Ruff, and Gordon Snively. All are members of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

Cloudy, Mild Forecast For Today's Weather

The weather forecast for Tuesday, according to the Austin Weather Bureau, is partly cloudy and mild with cooler temperatures in the afternoon. The low will be 50 degrees, high, 65 degrees.

Campus Blood Goal Far Away With 1,374 of 5,000 Pledged

Only 305 pledges of a pint of blood for the campus blood drive were turned in yesterday, Sidney Siegel, co-chairman of the drive committee, reported last night, bringing the overall total to 1,374, considerably below the expected figure.

"Unless more people take an interest in the drive, we can not meet the goal of 5,000 pledges," Miss Siegel said. "Of course, the smallness of yesterday's total may have been partly due to the bad weather." Two more days are left in which to meet the quota, as the drive closes Thursday.

Today at 11:50 in front of the Union, a group of drama students will present a short show to attract attention to the drive, she said.

Stuart McGregor sings a song for the show.

So far the School of Pharmacy leads in number of pledges turned in, with 281 pints of blood promised. Other high organizations are the Naval ROTC, with 141 pledges turned in yesterday alone; Alpha Phi Omega, 58 pints; and Kappa Kappa Gamma, 48 pints.

The only organizations pledging near 100 per cent so far are Phi Kappa Tau, the School of Pharmacy, the Student Assembly, and the Daily Texan, she said.

All organizations with pledge cards still out are asked to bring them by the APO office in the Texas Union as early as possible today.

Bible Asks 'Gradual' Sports De-emphasis

By CARLTON SPRING

Athletic Director Dana X. Bible, and head football coach Ed Price, two men whose opinions are respected in sport circles, agreed Monday that the recent reaction of the public against college athletics results from over-emphasis on winning.

But Mr. Bible pointed out that a program to assign a proper value to athletics should be "evolutionary rather than revolutionary."

The athletic director commented that the present reaction against college sports is mild compared to reaction in past history. He recalled that "many years ago there was a movement to abolish football completely because it was too dangerous."

Mr. Price said, "The stress on winning overshadows the many fine things that program athletics can provide." He is careful to impress upon his players that the scoreboard results are not as important as what they get out of the game.

A committee of three men will represent the University at a meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in Cincinnati January 9-12. Besides Mr. Price and Mr. Bible, the committee includes Dr. Vernon T. Schuhardt, chairman of the athletic council, as faculty representative.

Limiting spring football training is one of the subjects that will be discussed at the conference. At the December meeting of Southwest Conference coaches, athletic directors, and faculty directors, who compose the rule-making body of the conference, it was decided to limit spring football training to eighteen days. It had previously been 26 days.

ROTC to Give Credit For BA Requirements

By MILDRED KLESEL

Texas Editorial Assistant

The Faculty Council Monday unanimously approved a resolution permitting students to count ROTC courses toward a Bachelor of Arts degree. The plan is that nine hours of electives be substituted in the place of nine hours of social science in the junior year for Bachelor of Arts, Plan III, Scheme II.

ROTC will count 24 hours for Bachelor of Arts Plan II, while only eighteen for Bachelor of Arts, Plan III, Scheme I. Pre-law students under the Bachelor of Arts, Plan III, Scheme II are also included in this plan.

Under this same recommendation, allowance was made for occasional substitution in required freshman work, subject to the permission of the dean. The reason is that students whose interests center in the study of classical languages, especially those who intend to enter a seminary, be allowed substitutions.

The faculty council also unanimously agreed that a student who leaves school to enter military service and who upon returning chooses to graduate under a catalogue in effect for him prior to his entry into military service must complete all requirements for a degree within six years of the date of the catalogue chosen, exclusive of time spent in the service during a period of emergency.

A request was made that President T. S. Painter should appoint a special faculty-student committee to study the problem of smoking in University classrooms and in the University property.

A special committee consisting of William Sprigell, dean of the College of Business Administration as chairman, Vice-Chancellor C. D. Simmons, and Richard C. Maxwell, professor of law, reported that the Faculty Council request the Board of Regents to recommend to the Texas members of the US Congress that they support the passage of an amendment to the Social Security Act which would accomplish the following objectives:

1. The elimination of the exclusion from coverage of the employees under a state retirement system and the coverage of such employees at the option of a state after a favorable referendum by the group to be covered.
2. Optional coverage of groups of state employees in states where public contribution is illegal or impracticable on a basis similar to that presently applicable to the self-employed; that is, the establishment of a coverage based on employee contribution alone at a rate less than the combined employer-employee contribution alone at a rate less than the combined employer-employee contribution in the usual situation.

3. Reduction from the present age of 75 to the age of 70 at which an employee can engage in substantial covered employment without losing benefits under the act.

This resolution must be approved by the entire voting faculty of the University.

A special committee to study degree requirements for physical training including the number of years of physical training to be required of men and women, whether or not the requirements should be uniform for both sexes, and the teaching program of the two departments of physical training as related to the degree requirements was named by President Painter.

D. X. Bible is chairman of the group. Other members are Miss Anna Hiss, Jerre Williams, C. C. Colvert, G. W. Watt, C. P. Boyer, and S. L. McDonald.

A five-man committee headed by W. R. Woolrich will study the existing absence-reporting regulations of the University and the absence rules of the various departments. Other members are L. L. Click, J. A. Fitzgerald, M. K. Woodward, and H. R. Henze.

No AF-ROTC Unit Seen for Women

No Air Force ROTC unit for women students has been authorized for the near future, according to an announcement released by Col. E. E. McKesson, professor of air science and tactics.

However, participation of women in the Air Force ROTC program is desirable in view of current defense needs, the announcement continues. In a few instances universities and colleges having units have permitted and encouraged women to attend ROTC classes for academic credit without obligation to the Air Force.

Any information concerning such a program will be officially announced by Air Force headquarters through the professor of air science and tactics and University officials, the statement concludes.

The Chi Phi's claim that Friday's Forty Acres item called a bit ridiculous—just a matter of good engineering.

A 21-foot shuffle board, says a Chi Phi spokesman, was—as stated—placed in the 23-foot game room. They decided to do the job after coming to the conclusion that leaving the board in the hall caused traffic congestion. But it was not ridiculous at all, they maintain, putting a 21-foot shuffleboard in a 23-foot room. The board was taken apart and moved in pieces.

Everyone is happy now with the new arrangement, especially housemother Mrs. Patay Welch. She oiled up her arm and took a in the light of the pressures they create." At the December Southwest Conference meeting, Mr. Bible was appointed to a committee of five men to study the bowl game situation. This committee has not made any recommendation yet.

The schedule of the NCAA meeting includes consideration of the free-substitution rule in football. This rule makes the two-platoon system possible and is objected to by small schools who complain that they are not able to support football squads large enough to play two-platoon football.

The Southwest Conference is recommending that the free-substitution rule remain as it is.

Another important point that will be discussed at the NCAA meeting is a proposal to limit the number and amount of financial grants to athletes. At the present time, the executive secretary of the Southwest Conference is compiling statistics on the amounts and types of financial aid being given to athletes in the conference. These statistics will be discussed at another Southwest Conference meeting in May. At this meeting a policy on financial grants will be formulated.

Mr. Price said that he does not believe that a serious problem of high-school-star recruiting by colleges exists in the Southwest Conference. He continued, "With such a fine high school athletic program in Texas, we have a lot of good boys who might live within a radius of 200 miles from four Southwest Conference schools. When all four schools get after these boys, you have a lot of buyers for just one product, and the boys know it. But we tell them they can go to any Southwest Conference school. The scholarship is the same everywhere. Why not pick a school that can give you the education you want?"

In reference to pressure for banning bowl games, Mr. Price said, "When the school officials approve of a bowl game, and the boys vote to play in it, I'm for it." But he stressed that the decision of whether or not to play in a bowl is up to the faculty officials, not to the coaching staff.

He also emphasized that the final decision on playing in a bowl is up to the players themselves. One of the arguments against post season games is that it creates too great a hardship on players who must continue training during the Christmas season.

SE Conference Votes to Keep Bowl Policies

Three hours after the football de-emphasis program was announced by ten college presidents, Southeastern Conference athletic directors, in session at New Orleans, voted "almost unanimously" to ask the presidents to keep their hands off the bowl policies of that conference, the Associated Press reported Friday.

Representatives of the Rose, Cotton, and Orange Bowls questioned the wisdom or necessity of the proposal calling for the abolition of all bowl games. No one for the Sugar Bowl commented.

The secretary of the Cotton Bowl and Southwest Conference, Howard Grubb, agreed that steps should be taken to eliminate pressures created by bowl games, but that the Southwest Conference would not be sponsoring the Cotton Bowl if it did not think bowl games were all right.

Steers Fall, 59-55; Play Tulane Tonight

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Louisiana State University dropped the Texas Longhorns from the unbeaten ranks Monday night with a 59-55 basketball victory.

Bob Pettit, a 6-9 sophomore forward, led the Tigers with 30 points, including a field goal that broke a 55-55 tie with less than two minutes left. Don Belcher hit his only field goal of the night a few minutes later to clinch the LSU triumph.

The Longhorns, behind 43-50 going into the fourth quarter, rallied late in the final period to tie the score at 55-55, but Pettit's goal helped preserve the Tiger triumph.

There was only one minute, 40 seconds left in the game when the Longhorns tied it up. Officials, however, misinformed the Steers, saying two minutes, 40 seconds were left. The Longhorns played it tight and the Tigers went for the points, and that was the ball game.

Lanky Ted Price, the 6-8 center, paced the Longhorn scorers with 19 points, the most he's gathered in one contest. James Dowies who helped guard Pettit late in the contest, had 15 points.

Texas opened well, leading 13-8 at the end of the first quarter. Dowies scored 10 of the Longhorns' first 11 points in that initial period. But LSU roared back in the second period for 30 points as Pettit got to work with his hook shot and his layups.

Brooke Defeats San Diego Navy

Ex-Longhorn Stars In 17-14 Triumph

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Randy Clay, the former University of Texas star who played with the New York Giants in professional football, carried Brooke Army Medical Center to a 17-14 victory over San Diego Naval Training Center Sunday.

Clay kicked a 13-yard field goal in the second period to furnish the margin with which the bowl-bound Comets took the decision. Brooke, with a 10-1 record, plays Camp LeJeune, N. C., in the Cigar Bowl at Tampa, Fla., Dec. 29.

Clay not only was an offensive star but he came back in the last minutes as San Diego Navy threatened to win the game and intercepted a couple of passes.

Mel Selph, former Southwest Texas State star, scored one Comet touchdown on a 52-yard run and passed 28 yards to Jim Cleveland for the other. Clay kicked both extra points.

Wyoming Cagers Edge Baylor, 51-45

LARAMIE, Wyo., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Wyoming's Cowboys, led by forward Morris Samuelson, eked out at 51-45 win over Baylor Monday night in a ragged, loosely played basketball game.

Baylor jumped into a 2-0 lead in the opening minute as Cowpoke Coach Ev Shelton played his ball control unit. But Wyoming, hitting on long set shots from far out, took over and was never headed.

The Pioneers moved into an 11-7 lead at the end of the first period. Shelton sent his fast breaking unit into the game in the second quarter but the visitors matched them point for point and were behind by only four points 25-21 at the half.

Baylor moved to within two points at the three quarter mark as the Wyoming quintet missed numerous scoring opportunities and their passing game fell apart. In the final stanza the Bears, with only seven minutes remaining, pulled up to within one point at 42-41, but the Cowboys staged a brief rally to widen the margin and ice the game.

511 Congress

Once Is Enough

In early December a fabulous amount of comment said, in effect, that this country should do everything possible to avoid another "day that will live in infamy." The Truman administration joined in the chorus.

It seems strange, then, that the Truman administration employs General Walter Bedell Smith as chief of the Central Intelligence Agency. Why? Because ten years ago Smith was a key colonel in G2 (Army Intelligence) and was notably inefficient at the time of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

An Army board of inquiry which, in 1944, investigated the Pearl Harbor calamity strongly suggested that Smith was incompetent. The board hit at his handling of intercepted Japanese messages—hinting of an impending attack—"reached G2 of the War Department not later than the evening of December 6" and were given to Smith.

The report of the board continued, "Whatever was the reason of Colonel Smith for not conveying this message to General Marshall on the night of December 6, it was unfortunate."

Commenting on the costly delay, the Army board concluded: "Action (by the War Department) would have been sufficient to have alerted the Hawaiian Department. It was in possession of the information which was the last clear chance to use the means available to meet an attack. It had the background of the full development of the Japanese preparation for war and its probable date."

Smith's reasons for neglecting to relay what he knew to Pearl Harbor troops are not known. Further, he may have learned an unforgettable and valuable lesson.

Yet it would be much more reassuring to have a man with a background of alert service in Smith's place.

Not Too Late

It is not too late for public-spirited campus organizations to arrange for a Christmas party for any number of underprivileged Austin children.

So far, the supply of children has far exceeded the demand for them by student groups.

Representatives of interested groups should contact Dean of Men Jack Holland in his office, B. Hall 18.

For Progress

Static organizations seldom make progress.

In the interest of progress, the Texan wishes to have an appointed managing editor. Because the Texan belongs to all the students of the University, this change must be approved by a vote of the student body.

This change will help provide a better campus newspaper for your enjoyment. But you must help.

Tomorrow the polls will open. It takes only a very short while to vote.

Little Man on the Campus

Firing Line

IT'S NOT SOLD

TO THE EDITOR:

We, as students of the University of Texas, would like to know more about the drive—"Blood for Korea." Is it true that the blood we donate to the Red Cross has to be purchased by the Armed Forces for our soldiers in Korea? We, who have willingly pledged our blood, were under the assumption that it was given and not sold to the Armed Forces. Is the Red Cross a lucrative organization? The students of this University should be made aware of the facts.

Editor's Note: Miss Opal Leonard, Executive Director of the Travis County chapter of the American Red Cross, said Monday that "to my knowledge the Red Cross has never sold any blood to any of the armed services. The Red Cross is an agency licensed by the Defense Department to collect blood for them. The expense is borne by the Defense Department and the blood becomes the property of the Defense Department as soon as it goes into the bottle."

ALL THE WAY

TO THE EDITOR:

In my opinion Sid Martell, by his letter in Friday's "Firing Line," contributed as powerful a plea for blood drive support as has any brand and or publicity stunt. It deserves, I think, a front page reprint.

The pint of blood we pledge is a gift of life to a stranger. It is a gift worthy of the spirit of Christmas and makes complete all our other remembrances. We are pledging approximately one tenth of our blood supply: a tithe to charity more personal, than that which we drop in the collection plates. For us it is a small loss—roughly 90% water, 9% protein, and 1% salts.

When the blood drive committee set a goal of 5,000 pints for the University of Texas, they hitched their wagon to a star. I'd like to see that wagon go all the way.

HISTORY? PHOOEY

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to draw the attention of the History 615 profs to the fact that many foreign students are registered at the University, and that high percentage of them are taking American History.

Some of the history faculty teaching the course, seem to take for granted that all the students have had American History at some time or other during previous schooling. I, as one am an American citizen, but had not lived in this country prior to 1947 and had never studied American History in high school. It would be appreciated, therefore, that the profs keep this point in mind while "rattling" off their notes.

Faculty Evaluation To Return in Spring

By RUSS KERSTEN

Times Editor

Faculty evaluation, thanks to the Student Assembly, is on the way back under the same conditions as in the spring of 1951. Sometime after the turn of the new year, Assembly members will distribute tens of thousands of evaluation blanks to department heads.

The next move belongs to the individual professor, who may use or ignore the sheets entirely at his discretion.

Despite some legitimate gripes and a smattering of crank notations in the space for "remarks," the plan as operated last spring must be termed worthwhile by any standards. The essential factor, as everybody knew, was co-operation between teachers and students.

Sure enough, they co-operated in fine fashion. There were doubts in both camps that such would be the case, there were skeptics, there was a smattering of student disinterest, yet on the whole those drawbacks were overshadowed by the campus-wide benefits.

What are those benefits? Foremost is increased teacher efficiency. The total weight of opinion reflected generally shows up minor, correctable flaws, particularly to younger profs who are still groping for workable teaching tactics. Not that the values are confined to the younger set of profs by any means—after being evaluated last spring, a number of old-line profs confided to evaluation committee workers that they'd picked up a useful hint or two.

It is fundamental in the University plan that the results are not tabulated and shown to students. This factor tends to eliminate the powerful objection that evaluation could lead to faculty tenure on the basis of popularity shown in the total results. In deed, in some schools that is true. Regardless, our plan provides an excellent medium for comparing staff members within a department and weaknesses to the administration. (In some schools, evaluation results are a factor in determining salaries and promotions—which isn't necessarily bad.)

Doubters of the program's value claim that students don't use good judgment, that the rating system is inadequate (one might make this charge against any system under the sun), that ratings would weaken student-faculty relations, and that students are simply not qualified to rate teachers.

Of course, there'll always be screwballs like the government student last spring. In the blank marked "Name of Professor," he put "Snarf." Beside each numbered topic, he graded his prof five, the lowest. "Suggested changes in determination of your final grade" brought the comment "Fewer and Shorter Exams." In closing, he penned "Drop Dead" next to "General Remarks."

Any more examples might be dangerous in these days of ready wit.

In arguing the virtues of the UT evaluation system, proponents have one point that can't be topped: who is better qualified to judge a professor than the students before whom he performs several hours a week?

REAR VIEW

"It is about that time in the school year when students are beginning to ponder on the value of higher learning," wrote Ed Jensen in the Pitt News (University of Pittsburgh). "They wonder if it is worth all the effort they put into it, or, again, the effort they feel they put into it."

"Much of the energy they would devote to pursuing that learning they expend on aimless speculation, twistings and turnings of the mind which are most often expressed in the sophisticated terminology of their favorite subjects," he continues.

Gad, we're obviously bad. Jensen goes on: "Their uncertainty is explained, and even given a certain nobility, as symptoms of our times, or as indicative of the vast rootlessness and lack of purpose inherent in the intellectually delicate in this country. We offer no haven for the sensitive."

Continuing in much the same manner that old-timers do in lamenting the passing of the good old days, he writes of America's "WPA attitude toward living." In that same connection, he terms college liberal arts courses "props for our failures."

Jensen's proposals for college students: "Instead of picking out all the fatalistic notions offered in courses, we ought to pick up some of the indications that show us how to avoid the situations that bring about the fatalism. And we ought to lay off ourselves and give the books or the instructors or whatever it is we are concerned with a break."

"For nothing does more to lower the morale than a continuous dissertation on the depths to which it has plunged. We can talk ourselves into defeat."

"But, there probably is no answer. We are what we are and we must make the best of it. Just don't blame someone else for it."

"And instead of constantly saying that our problems are greater now than they ever were, and then using antidiotes concocted years ago to solve them, we ought to devise a few modern solutions."

"Just quit looking at life through a rear view mirror."

That's a pretty good pep talk. At least, it points out that the world isn't crumbling into sawdust, like some of the national magazines would have you believe.

A new slant in the selection of the best men for the Supreme Court, Court of Criminal Appeals and eleven Courts of Civil Appeals is being begun by the State Bar of Texas.

Fellow lawyers will vote on who they think would make the best candidates for the office. Then voters would choose the Judges from the list. Since the lawyers are in closer contact with fellow lawyers, it is believed that better choice will be made by them than by the voters.

"We think that conscientious voters not personally acquainted with the candidates will welcome the information gained from these polls," says C. A. Guitard, chairman of the committee on public information.

Perhaps the lawyers have hit upon a good scheme for protecting our rights and liberties by choosing the ablest to be our judges. At any rate voters shouldn't object since most of them don't take the time to vote when election rolls around.

Moans of Spooks Signal Initiation

Baleful moans and friendish guffaws emanating from Pease Park Thursday evening signalled the initiation of a new batch of Spooklets. Peggy Scott, chief spirit of the Spooks, presided.

The witchery got under way when the 25 neophytes were required to crack one joke apiece. Mary Louise Ivey's yarn was the only one to draw a laugh from the Spooks, but the club reporter coyly declined to repeat it for the press.

As penalty for their lack of humor, the Spooklets had to eat whole onions. Noelle Duggan, Spooklet and Aqua Carnival Queen finalist, swore that the Carnival judges wilted before her breath later that night.

A peppermint cane was awarded for the most recognizable object formed from previously-chewed bubblegum. Another ordeal was to hold a wad of snuff in the mouth until the girls developed a light green complexion.

Stewardess' Job Is Ideal For Vocation or Marriage

By GITA LOCKENVITZ

Many girls are accused of attending college to catch a husband, but if they fail to do so before graduation, they may still have a chance as an airline stewardess.

It is no wonder the stewardess gets her man so quickly, for the requirements she must meet to keep her job also make her attractive to any male. Pleasing appearance and charming personality are the keys to her success in meeting and accommodating her public.

Even if a girl is not marriage-minded, the job of hostess has the makings of an ideal vocation. The hours are lenient; for example, if a hostess is based in Kansas City and is on the regular flight to New York, she will leave Kansas City one day, return the next, and have approximately three days off before more duty. Aside from regular times off, the stewardess is allowed two weeks vacation, with pay each year.

If her regular flight does not take her to her idea of paradise, the airline hostess may further her travels on an annual mileage allowance—passes of from 1,500 to 7,000 miles per year, depending on her length of service—granted for her own use, and that of her immediate family. She is also given vacation travel allowance of round trip passes between any two points on the system for herself and her family.

Application for stewardess training begins with an interview and physical examination by a company flight surgeon. To qualify, a girl must be single, between the ages of 21 and 28, and five feet two inches to five feet seven inches in height, with maximum weight of 135 pounds. She must be of better than average appearance with a pleasant disposition, good judgment and character, and a sales personality.

Although 20 per cent of the hostesses are registered nurses, hospital training is not a requirement.

A high school diploma is necessary, and any additional education or business experience helps.

The starting salary is $185 a month with regular six-month promotions up to $275 a month. Trainees attend the airline stewardess school at company expense before going into regular duty. Here the girls live much as they do in college dormitories, attending classes to learn about the interior of planes, the scientific study of weather conditions, how to serve meals, handle people and about all the other work required of a stewardess.

When all this is done, the trainee receives her wings and is then ready for active flight duty.

After checking in, an hour before each flight, with the Flight Dispatcher, she checks her plane's equipment and buffet. She then welcomes and checks in passengers.

For the adventure-loving girl, who has a natural liking for people, the job of airline hostess will give great enjoyment and personal satisfaction.

Austin Firemen Need Co-ed Help Salvaging Toys

A dozen University co-eds can play "Santa's helper" this Christmas by assisting the Austin Fire Department in its annual toy salvage.

Raymond C. Thames, Austin fireman in charge of the dolls, remarked Monday that "about ten or twelve" girls could ease the doll situation this Christmas by making clothes for them.

If the girls can't go by the fire station at Thirtieth and Guadalupe Streets to pick up the dolls, Thames said he would take them to the girls if they would call 2-9201.

"Doll clothing doesn't have to be much," Thames said, as his fellow-workers knelt in the corner eagerly trying out a revived toy train. "My wife has been fixing some, and lots of times she just made diapers for them." Mrs. Thames has already made, cleaned, or repaired clothes for almost 500 dolls.

'Heaven Can Wait' to Open City Drama Festival Tonight

"Heaven Can Wait," the celestial comedy of Heaven's mistaken messenger by Harry Segall, will open the Civic Drama Festival here Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Austin High School auditorium.

"Heaven" will be the first of three well known plays staged by the Civic Drama Guild of New York, brought to Austin under the sponsorship of the Austin Exchange Club. The Guild presented three plays here last season and their popularity prompted the club to sign the players for another season.

Segall's play concerns the mix up of a heavenly messenger who is sent to chauffeur a "customer" into the other world, however, he errs in his choice, mistakenly picking up a confident prize-fighter who bitterly resents the error which cut short his promising ring career. The humor of the play grows out of this mistake and the complications that result when the boxer is returned to earth in another body.

The play has been termed one of Broadway's most successful comedies, and enjoyed a long run in New York. It has very successfully been woven into a movie under the title, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan."

Arthur Edwards, a veteran of 43 years in the professional the-ter, will lead the cast. Edwards started his career on Broadway, playing with such popular stars as George M. Cohen, Bela Lugosi, Ralph Bellamy, Helen Hayes, and Katherine Cornell. Turning to the movies he achieved success as Pearl White's leading man in "The Perils of Pauline."

Robert Spence will be seen as Joe, the pugilist, in the play. Spence has recently joined the Guild after a Broadway run with Mae West in "Diamond Lil."

Season tickets, priced at $5 each and good for all three shows, will be sold by Exchange Club members at the door the night of the show. Single-ticket admissions, however, will also be available at the high school auditorium.

The other shows on the festival program are "Darkness at Noon" on February 19 and "Voice of the Turtle" on March 20.

Proceeds from the festival will be used in the local club's three youth welfare projects.

Try-outs to End Wednesday For Next ACT Production

The last readings for parts in the Austin Civic Theater's psychological drama, "Night Must Fall," will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m., Mel Pape, director said Monday.

The cast for the drama will be announced Thursday.

"Night Must Fall" is written by Emyln Williams, author of "The Corn Is Green."

The play is the story of a young man who has committed a murder and is taken into the home of an old woman who is kindly disposed toward him. He has designs on the old lady's life in order to get her money. The old lady's niece falls in love with the young man. She learns of his scheme toward her aunt but does not turn him over to the police. As a result of her love and carelessness the young man kills the old lady and is taken into custody by the police.

"Night Must Fall" will be staged in the round at the Austin Civic Theater playhouse February 20-24.

Mr. Pape said Monday that he was checking into a recently passed tax exemption law to see if the law would affect the admission to "Night" as well as other productions. If the law applies to ACT the regular admission will be $1.25 and 75 cents for students. Admission to past productions has been $1.50 and 90 cents.

Political Satire Closes Tonight

"First Lady," the only first play to receive theater-in-the-round treatment by the Curtin Club in recent years, will be given for the last time Tuesday night at 8 in Modern Languages Building 103.

The play, a satiric comedy, deals with politics played by the wives of ambitious governmental officials to push their husbands toward the White House.

The comedy asserts the idea that the first lady should be elected by the people and then let her husband be the President. The action takes place mainly in the salons of Washington.

The play is directed by Anne Swarthout as her thesis project for a master's degree in drama production. It was written by George S. Kaufman and Katherine Dayton.

Tickets may be purchased in the Music Building Box Office at 40 cents to blanket tax holders and 80 cents to the public.

Dog Steals Show In Children's Play

A trained dog delighted the children at Clare Tree Major Children's Theater production of "Under the Lilacs" presented at Hogg Auditorium Monday afternoon.

The play, an adaptation from a tale by Louisa M. Alcott, centered around a young boy, Ben, who ran away from the circus. His dog, Sancho, who was his constant companion, did many tricks, and proved the most entertaining part of the play. The children were more interested in the dog than the play.

About 1,000 children watched a magician perform between the scenes.

"Under the Lilacs" had the happy ending with the solution of Ben's problems. It showed the children all helping each other.

This pleasant play was poorly presented, but the children enjoyed it.

Before the play began, the Visual Aids Department of the University presented words of Christmas carols on the screen, and the audience sang. The Clare Tree Major production was sponsored by the Austin Association of University Women.

Radio House Prepares Yule Shows for LBS

Radio House is planning two special Christmas programs for a nation-wide broadcast by the Liberty Broadcasting System, Thomas D. Rishworth, director of Radio House, announced Monday.

One of the programs is to be a 30-minute presentation of Christmas carols as sung by the 400-voice Austin High School combined choir, directed by Emma Virginia Decherd.

The script for the program was written by Miss Marye Benjamin of the Radio House staff. Mr. Rishworth is producer.

The other broadcast is to be an hour-long show featuring the University Symphony Orchestra and the a Cappella Choir, conducted by Alexander Von Kreier, professor of conducting in the University's music department.

Producing the second program is R. C. Norris, Radio House production manager. It will include Mendelssohn's "Mymn of Praise" and Keady's "Te Deum."

Broadcast times have not yet been announced by LBS, Mr. Rishworth added.

Joe Roddy, former radio major at the University and now program director of Liberty's key station, KLIF in Dallas, is in charge of broadcast arrangements. Mr. Roddy is one of six former radio majors now working for either KLIF or LBS, Mr. Rishworth added.

Announcing both shows will be Jim Reed, senior radio major.

This is the second year in which Radio House has offered such programs for coast-to-coast broadcast.
